ASSUMPTIONS AND HYPOTHESIS OF THE RESEARCH

The assumptions are that digital revolution, establishment of new technologies and platforms for traditional delivery of news and finding are the same in most of the research aspects; however, there are differences between the modern press in China and the West that are largely based on cultural and political factors. Consequently, the study is organized to benefit from the obtained results and either support or reject the research hypothesis. The research suggests that the online communication with the representatives of the media and press from both Far-Eastern and Western companies will provide more accurate answers to the research questions.

It is essential to focus on the explanation of future factors that could have an impact on the research participants who have different cultural perceptions. It is projected that the personal and professional experience of the research participants will have a positive effect on the perceptions of using the modern press in terms of the digital revolution, the establishment of new technologies and platforms for traditional delivery of news and finding the differences between the modern press in China and the West.
